This year Halloween falls on a Monday...is it your parenting day? What does the trick-or-treat schedule look like? Who will the children be trick or treating with? Do you know where your children will be?

It's the perfect time to plan and avoid monstrous scheduling issues. Get a head start on your Halloween, Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday parenting time schedules now!

Negotiate a clear schedule that benefits the kids and you as parents.

Try these tips for a conflict-free Halloween:

1. Divide the night so both parents have fun trick-or-treating. One parent can take the kids out from 3:00 to 5:00, and the next parent can trick-or-treat from 5:00 to 7:00.
2. Pick a neighborhood, pick a block, pick a side of the street-Really!
3. Pick an exact meeting point and time to transfer possession of the children. Be prompt to avoid a holiday conflict and ensure the fun doesn't get interrupted.
4. Start talking about Thanksgiving plans now. There is plenty of time to work out the schedule and ensure you can be grateful for... especially your peace of mind!

Is your parenting time schedule all figured out? Congratulations! The Law Office of Brigid A. Duffield, P.C. wishes you the best holiday season ever!

Do you need some assistance in getting your parenting schedule details worked out? Call Rachel to schedule mediation session, and go into the holiday season without stress and worry about where the kids will be, and when!

Have a very happy Halloween!
