

Happy Easter...
Spring is Here!

Spring is here - are you ready? For parents with summer parenting plans and agreements in place, you're ahead of the challenges that may come with the summer schedule. Working out schedules, adjusting parenting agreements as needed, and making objective decisions about which activities the kids will participate in this summer.

If you have resolved these questions, you are a success story!

If you haven't looked ahead on the calendar to the time between Memorial Day and Labor Day, chances are there will be a glitch or conflict somewhere. For example, does your children's school have a snow day which extends the school year? Do you know the Fourth of July holiday falls in the middle of the week this year? Is it your holiday or your ex's? Is it during your summer vacation? Take a few minutes and check the calendar for the months of May, June, July and August and anticipate where a scheduling dispute might arise -- be it Mother's Day, Memorial Day, Father's Day, your vacation plans, or your child's summer camp. Solving the potential disputes now may mean a fun filled summer rather than days where you are taking time from fun things to negotiate changes to plans that might be avoidable.
